Terry Ann Maxwell – The Photograph

“I think the most important thing right now is to tell the people in your life you love them everyday” Terry Ann.

As we get older we come to realize how fragile life can be and how important it is to let those you love and care about know how you feel.

“The genesis of this song, THE PHOTOGRAPH, came to me after I saw a 100 year old photograph of family members on their wedding day before time stole their youth, and I thought of the importance of simply saying “I love you” to those close to us as you never know just what is around the corner and what fate may bring to us”.

The music was recorded in Nashville at Omni Studio with some of Nashville’s best musicians while the vocals and harmony were recorded here in Australia.

The main message in this song about not leaving your family, or the people you care about, without saying “I love you”
