Sue Dyson – Once Upon A Time

Once Upon A Time, produced by Simon Johnson from Hillbilly Hut in Sydney, tells a gritty story of two people caught up in a world of pain, a broken relationship past the point of no return. Once Upon A Time is a love song in which the fairy tale does not end happily ever after.

Written by her good friend, Simon Lynch (who penned "Naming Names" for Wendy Mathews & "When the feeling has gone" for NZ band, Ardijah). Sue first heard the demo of this song back in early 2012 when Simon was half way through writing it and fell in love with this song.

Sue has been performing Once Upon A Time live over the last few years and has always had a great response from audiences.
