Clayton Saunders - God Knows

In these dark days and trying times where the unholy trinity, and by that I mean power, greed and money, still rule the world, I wanted to share a message of hope, faith and trust.

God Knows, is a gospel song about just that. It shares a message that while the doers of evil roam amongst us there is ALWAYS HOPE. If we're willing to open our hearts and minds to the very real possibility that a higher source does exist, then the answer to all our troubles is just a prayer away.

In my humble opinion, I believe if we place our trust in something bigger and beyond ourselves, then we will acquire the strength and mental fortitude to overcome any challenge that life throws our way.

There is no doubt that since the pandemic, the seemingly never-ending lockdowns, the decision to take or not take the vaccine has left many households divided in its wake. Add to that the horrors of the unnecessary Ukraine war taking its terrible toll, we as a society have had our backs slammed against the wall.

But if as a world community we are prepared to stand together, pool our resources, remember first and foremost that kindness is the way and choose not to take advantage of the less fortunate, then there is light at the end of the tunnel. There always is, we just have to make the conscious choice to keep moving towards it.

Times change, storms will come, but after every storm comes a rainbow. It's appearance is a sure sign that ALL THINGS SHALL PASS.

So draw on your courage, summon your faith, and believe in the fact that every tear you shed, every prayer you pray, GOD KNOWS.
